A PREFACE

- This guide has been issued by the South African Institute of Chartered Accountants' (SAICA's) Legal Compliance Committee (LCC).
- The guide seeks to inform members of the requirement to retain documents for a certain time period.
- 3 Every effort has been made to ensure that where quotes, extracts and paragraphs from legislation are referred to these references are correct. The information contained in the guide is for information purposes only.

B INTRODUCTION

- 4 Owing to various legislative requirements, documents must be retained for a certain number of years, depending on the legislation.
- 5 This guide refers to the legislation and identifies the timeframe in which certain documents have to be kept.
- The guide does not attempt to include all legislation, but only refers to the general legislation that impact on a wide variety of entities.
- 7 The guide has been compiled to assist SAICA members to meet the legislative requirements when they deal with clients.
- The guide is structured to refer to the relevant Act and then to the documents that should be kept and to the period of retention.

Protection of Personal Information Act 4 of 2014

- The Protection of Personal Information Act 4 of 2014 (POPIA) was signed and made effective on 1 July 2020 with the grace period for compliance that expired on 1 July 2021.
- 10 The retention of documents would now require consideration of the POPIA requirements. Section 14 of POPIA specifically states that records of personal information may not be retained any longer than necessary for achieving the purposes for which the information was collected or subsequently processed unless –

- the retention of the records is required or authorised by law, or
- the responsible party reasonably requires the record for lawful purposes related to its functions or activities, or
- the retention of the records is required by a contract between parties, or
- the data subject or a competent person (where the data subject is a child) has consented to the retention of the records.
- 11 POPIA states that records of personal information may be retained in excess of what is required, for example by law, for historical, statistical or research purposes if the responsible party has established the appropriate safeguards to protect the records from other use.
- POPIA also deals with the destruction of personal information and states that personal information must be destroyed or deleted as soon as practicable after the responsible party are no longer authorised to retain the records. When records are deleted or destroyed, it must be done in a manner to prevent its reconstruction.
- 13 The relationship between POPIA and other laws requiring retention must be considered and responsible parties cannot keep personal information for longer than required.

Multiple legislative requirements

- Where different legislation refers to the retention of the same records/information, business must consider adhering to the most stringent of the legislative requirements. For example, the Value-Added Tax (VAT) Act 89 of 1991 states that invoices should be kept for five years from the submission of the return. However, if the entity is a company, the Companies Act (Companies Act) 71 of 2008 would require the financial records to be kept for a minimum of seven years and therefore the company should adhere to the most stringent requirement of seven years. Other entities would need to refer to the VAT Act as well as any legislation that governs the entity. Where legislation refers to different records (eg employment records versus accounting records), then each requirement is specific to that legislation and should be applied accordingly to the specific records.
- 15 It is important to note that the Companies Act has a general requirement in respect of any information that a company is required to keep (whether in terms of the Companies Act or any other legislation) to retain such information for a period of at least seven years (or the longer period specified in the applicable legislation). Therefore, companies should ensure that company records and information are retained for no less than seven years.

Retention of records for an 'indefinite' period

- In certain instances, legislation requires that records be kept for an 'indefinite' period. The term 'indefinite' is not defined in the legislation but clearly requires that documents be retained for as long as the relevant entity exists. We note, however, that once an entity ceases to exist, the obligation on that entity to retain documents 'indefinitely' also ceases to exist. In the case of a company, for example, the obligation to retain documents in terms of the Companies Act only applies to an entity that remains registered as a company.
- After an entity ceases to exist, other legislation may require records to be retained, but typically only for a period of time and no longer 'indefinitely'. In the case of liquidation or sequestration in terms of the Insolvency Act 24 of 1936 specific requirements apply to the retention of documents, discussed under Section 11 'Insolvency and Liquidation' below. As a company that has been deregistered can be re-registered, or litigation may follow in respect of the deregistered company, we propose that the records of a deregistered company be retained for a reasonable period after deregistration (we propose not less than three years).

15 NON-PROFIT ORGANISATIONS

Non-Profit Organisations Act 71 of 1997

- 15.1 The Non-Profit Organisations Act 71 of 1997 (NPO) established the non-profit organisations directorate and regulates non-profit organisations (NPOs) in South Africa. The Act became effective on 1 September 1998. The directorate provides a voluntary registration facility that enhances the credibility of the registered NPO as it reports to a public office.
- 15.2 The NPO Directorate, as a public office, holds information about registered NPOs for the public to access. This thus increases the transparency and accountability of the organisation beyond its immediate role-plays. This accountability and transparency improve the governance of an organisation as it is also expected that a registered NPO must comply with the requirements of the NPO Act.

19 TAX

19.1 The Income Tax Act 58 of 1962 is the Act that governs all the laws relating to income taxes and donations and the Value-Added Tax Act 89 of 1991 provides for the taxation of the supply of goods and services as well as the importation of goods. The requirements relating to the retention of documentation requirements were removed from the Income Tax Act and the Value-Added Tax Act and were included in the Tax Administration Act 28 of 2011 which has been effective from 1 October 2012.

Tax Administration Act 28 of 2011 (TAA)

- 19.2 Section 29 of the Tax Administration Act 28 of 2011 contains the general record retention requirements for all Acts administered by the Commissioner (schedule 1 of the South African Revenue Service Act 1997) and states that a person must keep the records, books of account or documents that
 - Enable the person to observe the requirements of a Tax Act
 - Are specifically required under a Tax Act or by the Commissioner by public notice, and
 - Will enable the South African Revenue Service (SARS) to be satisfied that the person has observed these requirements

Form in which records may be retained

- 19.9 Aside from the general record retention requirements, taxpayers must also be aware of the form in which records must be retained. According to section 30 of the TAA, records must be kept:
 - In their original form in an orderly fashion at a safe place
 - In any other form (including electronic) as may be prescribed by the SARS
 Commissioner in a public notice, or
 - In a form specifically authorised by a senior SARS official
- 19.10 The SARS Commissioner published notice 787 to provide taxpayers with more detailed guidance regarding the retention of documents in electronic form. As a general matter, electronic records must be kept at a place physically located in South Africa. However, a senior SARS official may authorise for electronic records to be kept at a place physically located outside of South Africa if certain requirements are met. Additionally, records retained in an electronic format or computer software commonly recognised in South Africa are subject to less stringent requirements, for the purposes of the public notice.
- 19.11 Furthermore, the SARS Commissioner published notice 1334 which prescribes the records to be kept specifically for transfer pricing purposes. Transfer pricing can be described in broad terms as the process by which entities set the prices (ie, arm's length) at which they transfer goods or services between each other.
